5. Jane's friends taught her an important lesson on how to deal with her anxiety. Can you remember what she learned?
6. How well did Jane do at the Carnival Games?
7. Did Molly find the games as easy as Jane did?
8. How did this make Molly feel?
9. When Jane noticed Molly felt upset, what did she do?
10. Why do you think it was important that Jane wanted to help Molly practice?
11. If you had a friend that felt sad because they weren't good at something, what would you do or say to them?
12. In the story, Jane told Molly to practice and try again next year. What do you think Molly learned about working hard at something?

The page features a vibrant, cartoon-style circus background. At the top left, a bright yellow sun with rays is partially visible. On the left side, a red and white striped circus tent is shown. On the right side, a cluster of colorful balloons in shades of red, orange, and blue is depicted. At the bottom left, there are wooden posts with colorful rings (red, green, blue) for a ring toss game. At the bottom right, a red and white striped awning covers a table with a glass of lemonade and a cornucopia of popcorn. The central text is contained within a large, white, rounded rectangular area with a black border.

Think about:

What is your friend practicing?

How are you helping them?

Are you both smiling and working together?

Where are you practicing? At home? Outside? At school?
